Welcome

STEM

Quest engineers constructed musical instruments out of simple everyday household materials. The students learned how sound travels through the instruments. They also focused on the history behind the instruments. The students shared how these instruments were constructed and their knowledge of the instruments' sounds with their fellow peers.

Guitar

This year, our fabulous Quest guitar group will be performing four different songs by Rock-n-Roll and pop music artists from the 1960s, 1970s, and the 2010s. They will also be acting out mini-skits that they wrote in their literacy class. These skits take place in radio stations in four different cities that are promoting the concerts they will perform. The students made the artwork and scenery. Thanks to the amazing effort by groups Art 3, Chorus, Music 2 and STEM 1.

Literacy

Mr. Meyers and Mrs. Duffy teamed up to produce a music show with a few skits blended in so that the kids can tell a story behind each song. The students brainstormed ideas and wrote each skit on their own, using the writing skills they are learning in class, but given the freedom to write creatively. Such skills included developing a story frame and characterization. They took a set idea and created colorful characters, bringing them to life through action and dialogue. They worked cooperatively in small groups, expressing their ideas, listening to each other and most importantly working as a team.
